DESCRIPTION

Bowl made in the 1950s by Alexandre Noll, a sculptor and wood engraver renowned for his direct carving technique.

Carved from a single block of solid linden, this piece features a rectangular form with softened corners, gradually hollowed by hand. The gently curved sides and subtly concave base reflect a precise working process, where utilitarian function is paired with a clear formal intention. The wood grain remains visible across the entire surface, animated by a soft patina acquired over time, enhancing the tactile and sculptural quality of the object.

France, circa 1950.
